Preparatory Education vs Direct Placement

Preparatory Education

Undergraduate students attend 1 year of Preparatory Education at a designated university in Japan.

This one-year course not only acclimatises students to the Japanese University system but also brings their language and academic skills up to speed for commencing an Undergraduate degree at Japanese University.

After this first year, MEXT assists students to apply for entry to their university of choice and begin studies in their nominated Field of Study. Those with higher ranked grades at the end of the year have more chance of being admitted to their first university of choice.

Note that you cannot change your Field of Study once in Japan. You will be offered a scholarship based on the Field of Study you wrote in your application.

Direct Placement

In special cases, where applicants have exceptional Japanese proficiency, they may apply for Direct Placement to a university. This means they skip the one-year preparatory course and go straight to their desired university course.

This is an additional procedure which takes place after submitting your application. The Embassy can provide a list of Universities which can admit direct placement students. (We do not receive this list until July 2021)

Note that in some cases, if your application for direct placement is knocked back, you can revert to taking the Preparatory language course. However, for some universities this is not the case, and your application will be withdrawn.

Please consult with the Embassy before applying if you are considering Direct Placement.

COVID-19 Impact on Scholarship Round in 2022

As we are all well aware, COVID-19 has made international travel and forward planning considerably difficult.

MEXT informs applicants that under some circumstances such as travel restrictions or curfews, there remains the possibility that applicants will not be able to come to Japan even after being selected as scholarship students.
